

The Grow Home

A single family narrow-front townhouse. Spaces can be left unpartitioned for the occupant to “grow” into when means become available. Cost savings resulted from the dwelling’s small size and simplicity, and lowering of cost and infrastructure.

Bibliography

Friedman, A., The Grow Home, McGill-Queen's University Press, Montréal, 2001 (208 pp.). (Softcover edition 2006)
Translated into Chinese and published by Jiangsu Science & Technology Publishing House, Nanjung, China.

The Next Home

A narrow-front multi-family structure that can become a single family, duplex or triplex. A catalogue offers builders and buyers means to customize the interior and the exterior to their needs and budget.

Bibliography

Friedman, A., The Adaptable House: Designing for Choice and Change, McGraw-Hill, New York, 2002 (304 pp.).

La Casa a la Carta

Designed for the developing world, La Casa is a narrow-front single-story row unit which was designed to expand to the rear and upwards.

Bibliography

Friedman, A., "La Casa a la Carta: North Helps House South," Open House International, Vol. 23, No. 4, pp. 4-12, 1998.