Distinguished Educators Seminar Series, 2008-2009

Improve Information Literacy in Your Students

Presented by
Joan Bartlett

May 1, 2009 | Location TBA | Time: 9:30-3:30

Designed for Teachers and Librarians in Upper Elementary, Secondary and Adult Education

This hands-on workshop will focus on ways to improve information literacy in your students. This in turn should lead to stronger research skills, better critical assessment of information resources (including the Internet) and improved academic integrity

You will learn how to -

- analyze information literacy skills and competencies
- incorporate ways to assess and teach information skills into class assignments
- help students practice core information searching skills using a variety of information resources
- collaborate with library staff to support classroom learning

You will leave the workshop with ideas to help your students more easily

- identify what information is needed to support their learning
- find and retrieve information from appropriate sources
- use or apply that information properly

Dr. Joan Bartlett is Assistant Professor in the McGill School of Information Studies, where she teaches and conducts research in the areas of information-seeking and use and information literacy. She has previously worked as an instructional librarian, teaching information literacy skills to a variety of audiences. She is also a library volunteer in the Lester B. Pearson School Board.
