Health Geography (Assistant Professor)

The Department of Geography (<http://www.mcgill.ca/geography/>), Faculty of Science, McGill University, invites applications for a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor in Health Geography. We seek a scholar with a demonstrated innovative research program in environmental change and global health, urban sustainability and health, Indigenous peoples' health, and/or the geography of aging and health. The successful candidate will join an active cluster of health geography researchers in the Geography Department. The hire will find opportunities for collaborative research with other units at McGill University, including the Faculty of Medicine, the Institute for Health and Social Policy (IHSP), the Institute for the Study of International Development (ISID), the McGill School of Environment (MSE), and the Sustainability, Science and Society Interfaculty Undergraduate Program.

Applicants must possess a PhD in Geography or an equivalent discipline. The successful applicant will be expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in the Department of Geography, and develop a vigorous, independent research program, embracing the supervision of graduate students.

McGill University is committed to equity in employment and diversity. It welcomes applications from indigenous peoples, visible minorities, ethnic minorities, persons with disabilities, women, persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities and others who may contribute to further diversification. To this end, I draw your attention to McGill's Equity & Diversity Survey (<http://www.mcgill.ca/apo/equity-diversity-survey>). We invite you to complete this survey online. If you choose to complete the survey, please use the following reference number [R863]. Please complete the survey by January 15, 2018. All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, priority will be given to Canadian citizens and permanent residents of Canada. As English is the language of instruction at McGill, knowledge of French is an asset but not a requirement.

Candidates should supply their curriculum vitae, statements of teaching specializations and research interests, up to three reprints, and letters from three referees. Submit your application and supporting material to recruit.geog@mcgill.ca. The review of applications will begin January 15, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.
