Osler's Use of "Ike" for Revere

In my paper on Revere, given at the 1980 meeting of the American Osler Society, I attributed Osler's use of "Ike" as a contraction of Izaak Walton to Revere's passion for fishing.1 Apparently, at the time, other Oslerians also thought so and no one questioned it. Cushing (p. 645) cites Osler's first use of "Isaac Walton" (sic) in several handwritten letters sent in the summer of 1904 from Murray Bay, Canada, where Revere was age 8, mentioning for the first time the boy's interest in trout fishing, but not mentioning him by name.2 He used the Biblical spelling Isaac. This fascination with fishing continued lifelong as Revere's greatest hobby and recreation. I found no acknowledgement by Revere of Osler's use of the nickname before then. As he grew up, Revere often signed himself "Disciple of Izaak Walton," began to collect his books and included the phrase in abbreviated form in his book plate. It was included in my address on the Tudor and Stuart Club of Johns Hopkins University given at the 1983 American Osler Society meeting.3 Revere always used Walton's spelling of Izaak. It would appear he accepted the connection with fishing.

In 1985, Alastair Robb-Smith, after reading my 1980 paper, raised the question of earlier uses of "Ike" that would require a different derivation. He recalls that in 1984 or '85 he read an article or book that suggested it was inspired by the Biblical Isaac, the son of Abraham and Sarah, but he cannot recall or find the reference.4 Earl Nation, in his Dock lecture of 1965, had mentioned hearing of the possibility of a Biblical origin. He gave no reference, but recalls seeing one to Abraham and Isaac years before, though he cannot locate it.4 Inquiries to other Oslerians brought recollections that Osler had earlier used the term, obviously referring to Revere but not mentioning him by name. Cushing (p. 422) states that by 1896, following Revere's birth in 1895, Osler, in letters to friends, began to use "Ike" along with other nicknames such as Tommy, Isaac, or Edgerston. Edward Bensley, reviewing Cushing's manuscript files for 1895 and '96 in the Osler Library, found the nickname usually used was Edgerston or some slight variation of it. The exception was one letter in July 1896 in which Osler referred to Revere, then seven months old, as "Ike". The files gave no explanations as to why Osler used the name. He used the Biblical spelling Isaac.

The day after my inquiry in 1985, Bensley met with Harold Segall who had long been interested in Osler.5 They discussed the story in Genesis, Chapters 17-21, and concluded that the Biblical derivation is the correct one. Osler's background as the son of an Anglican Missionary to Canada, his own early university religious training before he switched to medicine, and his use of Biblical references in his writings over the years all make it reasonable. Osler was 46 and Grace 41 when Revere was born, so an allusion to a child born in old age is conceivable. According to the Bible, Abraham was 100 and Sarah 91 when Isaac was born. The actual ages given obviously are in error, but do confirm that both were up in years before having their son. Sarah had been barren, but God had promised Abraham he would have a child even though she was now old. She named him Isaac from the verb "he laughs" which she does over his birth. Osler was overjoyed at having a fine, happy son after the death of his and Grace's first.

The evidence clearly indicates the Biblical derivation though father and son continued to use their own interpretations of its origin.

Faith Wallis Honoured

By a unanimous decision of the Board of Curators at its meeting on November 7th, 1990, Faith Wallis was awarded the honorific title of Osler Librarian.

Faith Wallis joined the staff of the Osler Library in January 1985 as Assistant History of Medicine Librarian. She immediately set the highest possible standard for the combined role of scholar and librarian. Following an international recruitment for a History of Medicine Librarian, Dr. Wallis was selected for this position in March, 1986.

Since her appointment as History of Medicine Librarian, Dr. Wallis has promoted the Osler Library in the Faculty of Medicine, the University community and externally to an unprecedented degree. She is committed to making available the resources of the Library in the advancement of scholarship. Her own scholarship, as a medievalist, enhances her role as ambassador on behalf of the Osler Library. At the same time, Dr. Wallis continues to play a daily role in the Osler Library, responding to numerous demands for service by users. Her commitment to developing the collection has been distinguished, in particular through her initiatives with respect to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council. Through her initiative, Dr. Eric Ormsby, Director of McGill University Libraries, acquired a substantial collection of 19th-century French medical theses for the Library. These are only a few of the many achievements that qualify Dr. Wallis for the title of Osler Librarian.

The designation Osler Librarian is an honorific title, without financial implications. However, since it is awarded by the Board of Curators and has been given only twice, to Dr. W. W. Francis and to Dr. Philip M. Teigen, it is most prestigious.

A previously unpublished Osler letter has recently come to light, pasted on the back of a framed copy of John Singer Sargent's crayon sketch of Osler (1914), in the possession of a daughter of the late Sir Arthur Hurst.

Sir Arthur Hurst (1879-1944), physician to Guy's Hospital and pioneer of British gastro-enterology, was one of this century's greatest doctors. He was an Oxford graduate and, early in his career in 1905, he was awarded a Radcliffe Travelling Fellowship. The OsIers, newly arrived in Oxford and not yet settled in 13 Norham Gardens, were lodging at the King's Arms. Hurst went there to see Osler and consulted him about his plans for foreign travel. They became good friends and Hurst was delighted when, in 1935, Oxford University awarded him the Osler Medal.

During the First World War, Osler and Hurst were medical consultants to the Army but Hurst (thirty years younger than Osler) served overseas with the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force and later in hospitals in Oxford, Netley and Seale Hayne.

In 1912, Hurst married a New Zealand girl, Cushla Riddiford, and a son and two daughters were born to them. Osler was fond of Cushla Hurst and, because she was from New Zealand, he dubbed her "Zelanda". The copy of the Sargent sketch was a present from Osler to Cushla Hurst and is inscribed: "Zelanda. With affectionate regards. 5.3.17".

The letter, pasted on the back of the Sargent print, is written on headed paper from 13 Norham Gardens, Oxford, and is simply dated "16th". Since the date on the Sargent print is 5.3.17 one may assume that the letter was written on 16.3.17. The style is typical of Osler in light-hearted mood. The reference to "the major" is, of course, to Arthur Hurst, then serving at Netley Military Hospital, Hampshire. He was later promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel. Hurst was asthmatic and the reference to Netley night air being soporific may possibly relate to this.

Dear Zelanda

I was thrilled - head and heart - to hear from my niece today that the photographs were only now ready. I hope it has arrived. There has been such a run on [this] class of professional beauty photograph that the delay was unavoidable!

I hope all goes well with the major and that the Netley night air is soporific.

Yours sincerely
Wm Osler

Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada Unveils Plaque Commemorating Sir William Osler

A special feature of Osler Day on November 7th, 1990 was the unveiling of a plaque of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada commemorating Sir William Osler. The ceremony of unveiling was held in the Osler Library, the afternoon of Osler Day. The Chair was occupied by Mrs. Raymond Gauthier, member of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada. Welcoming remarks were made by Dr. Richard Cruess, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, McGill University. Historical and biographical notes relating to Sir William Osler were provided by Dr. Faith Wallis, Dr. Richard Golden and Dr. Marian Kelen. The unveiling itself was performed by Dr. Richard Cruess and the Honourable Robert Layton, M.P. for Lachine - Lac-Saint-Louis, representing the Honourable Robert R. de Cotret, Minister of the Environment for Canada, to whom the Historic Sites and Monuments Board is an advisory body. Then Mr. Gilles Desaulniers, Director General, Canada Parks Service read the text of the plaque in French and English, and the Reverend Nick Brotherwood of the McGill University Chaplaincy Service offered the blessing. Subsequently the plaque was mounted just outside the Drummond Street entrance of the McIntyre Medical Building.
Corrections to Newsletter 65

The author’s name, Palmer H. Futcher, was inadvertently omitted at the end of the leading article in the October 1990 Newsletter. We offer our apologies.

The caption under the illustration to that same lead article should read “Marjorie Howard at the time of her engagement to Thomas B. Futcher, 1909.”

In the tribute to Harold Nathan Segall in the October 1990 Newsletter, “Aequainitas” should have been “Aequainimitas.”

Friends of the Osler Library

The Library gratefully acknowledges the support it has received from Friends, both old and new, who have responded to the appeal for funds for the 1990-1991 academic year. To date 307 Friends have given a total of approximately $13,620. A special donation of $18,000 (U.S.) has been received for renovation projects to the Osler Library and a travel fund for the Librarians. Most of the contributions have come from Friends in Canada and the United States of America. However very welcome contributions have come also from Brazil, Chile, Federal Republic of Germany; India, Norway; Switzerland, United Kingdom and West Indies.

The names of Friends whose contributions are recorded after January 31, 1991 will be listed in the June issue of the Newsletter.
