Note: This course is restricted to Anthropology major and honours students and who must have taken ANTH 201, the course prerequisite.

Course Objectives:

This course will review basic principles of analysis and interpretation of zooarchaeological materials. Rather than provide a comprehensive overview, these principles will be illustrated primarily through the detailed examination of case studies and through practical exercises.

Texts:

Vertebrate Taphonomy by R. Lee Lyman. 1994. Cambridge University Press. (Can be ordered through Amazon.ca).

Additional Required Readings:

The readings listed below under ‘Schedule of Topics’ will be available as PDF files and/or diagrams on myCourses

Evaluation:

Evaluation for the course will be based on the following:

Laboratory exercises (2 x 25%; 2 x 20%; 1 x 10%) – 100%

Laboratory Assignments:

The assignments are structured so as to provide practical experience with zooarchaeological data and at the same time allow students to apply various concepts and approaches discussed in lectures and assigned readings to these data. Marks will be based on both analysis of raw data and the application of concepts and approaches. The text for each assignment must be type-written, and double-spaced, and the raw tabulations and manipulations on Excel spreadsheets or equivalent. Marks will be deducted for poor grammar and incorrect spelling. Note: Late assignments will not be accepted!
