ANTH. 358. The Process of Anthropological Research

Term: Winter 2021
Schedule: Tuesdays and Thursdays from 13.00 to 14.25
Classroom: Remote

Professor: Ismael Vaccaro
Office: Leacock 723
Office hours: by appointment

Introduction
This class will discuss the main issues involved in the process of designing anthropological research. During the course we will introduce the idea of ethnographic fieldwork and the social context that surrounds it (with special emphasis on ethics and politics). The students will learn to identify and polish research questions and to develop a research project designed to answer that question. Consequently, the students will be exposed to a large array of methodological devices. This class will have a significant component of actual hands-on ethnographic fieldwork. Finally, the class will conclude by discussing data interpretation and writing.

Learning Objectives
Students completing this course will be able to:
1. Formulate productive research questions within anthropological frameworks;
2. Apply various research techniques and methods to gather research data, including writing ethnographic field notes, collecting documentary photographs, participant observation, and conducting various types of ethnographic interview.
3. Translate raw material from their own field observations into an analytic ethnographic essay.

Readings

Evaluation
Assignment-Quiz 25%
Practicums (7 points each activity report) 35%
   1) Religious ceremony ethnographic observation
   2) Interview (open ended versus closed questions)
   3) Collecting a life story
   4) Collect a genealogy
   5) Coding information
Written report on "Works and Lives" (report due before class) 10%
Final paper (research proposal) 30%
“In the event of extraordinary circumstances beyond the University’s control, the content and/or evaluation scheme in this course is subject to change.”

Regarding Remote Delivery
The remote learning context presents new challenges for all involved, and student engagement is of particular concern. Our hope for this class is that we can experiment together and find ways to build intellectual community despite our physical distance. Let’s just remember that this is a complicated time for everyone that takes us out of our so-called zones of comfort. Let’s use that as a possibility for shaking things up and finding new ways of being together.

We will be recording all of our classes, although we strongly urge you to attend “in-person”. Students must consent to being recorded if they are attending a lecture or participating in a component of a course that is being recorded. Students will be notified through a ‘pop-up’ box in Zoom if a lecture is being recorded. If they are not comfortable being in a class that is recorded, students may decide to not take part by logging off Zoom. We will make class video recordings available in MyCourses so that students who log off will be able to later watch the recording. Here is McGill’s statement on recording:

Please read the Guidelines on Remote Teaching and Learning [https://www.mcgill.ca/tls/instructors/class-disruption/strategies/guidelines-remote]. You will be notified through a ‘pop-up’ box in Zoom if a lecture or portion of a class is being recorded. By remaining in sessions that are recorded, you agree to the recording, and you understand that your image, voice, and name may be disclosed to classmates. You also understand that recordings will be made available in myCourses to students registered in the course.

To make these sessions more personable, we encourage everyone to enable the video function. This is not a requirement, and you will not be penalized for having your video turned off.

McGill University values academic integrity. Therefore all students must understand the meaning and consequences of cheating, plagiarism and other academic offences under the Code of Student Conduct and Disciplinary Procedures (see www.mcgill.ca/students/srr/honest/ for more information).

L’université McGill attache une haute importance à l’honnêteté académique. Il incombe par conséquent à tous les étudiants de comprendre ce que l’on entend par tricherie, plagiat et autres infractions académiques, ainsi que les conséquences que peuvent avoir de telles actions, selon le Code de conduite de l’étudiant et des procédures disciplinaires (pour de plus amples renseignements, veuillez consulter le site www.mcgill.ca/students/srr/honest/).

In accord with McGill University’s Charter of Students’ Rights, students in this course have the right to submit in English or in French any written work that is to be graded.

In the event of extraordinary circumstances beyond the University’s control, the content and/or evaluation scheme in this course is subject to change.
