

Internship Opportunity with UPSTREAM JOURNAL Summer 2024

POSITION:	Human Rights Journalism Intern
LOCATION:	Montreal, QC. Hybrid internship: intern is expected to attend the office while being permitted to work from a location other than the office some of the time. The number of days in the office is determined by the host organization.
DESCRIPTION OF HOST ORGANIZATION:	The Upstream Journal is a magazine about human rights and social justice. Since its launch in January 1986, it has told the stories of people and communities facing poverty, oppression, and marginalization with the goal of giving them, to the extent it could, a voice. Now online, it is also the host of the podcast "Human Rights Magazine". A visit to the website is highly recommended before applying.
INTERN'S DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES:	Interns work with the editor to identify possible story ideas, do background research, conduct interviews, gather supporting images, and decide the approach to take to the preparation of a magazine article. Then comes the writing and editing phase, re-working the text so that it succeeds in bringing aspects of the human condition to engaged readers. Articles are then published and promoted through social media. Interns also prepare an episode, using recorded material from the interviews, for our podcast channel, Human Rights Magazine, along with a brief promotional video. The internship requires constant communication with the editor, and full participation in meetings of the Upstream's team. If the project objectives are not met within the time frame of the internship, the intern commits to continuing to achieve completion of the objectives.
HOST ORGANIZATION REQUIREMENTS:	Interns should have solid writing skills, but do not need to have prior training in journalism. Interns from a wide variety of backgrounds are welcome to work with the editor in a partnership to build the best products possible. Stories in either French or English are welcome.
