THESES AND DISSERTATIONS

- Distel, Kristin M. Gendered Shame, Female Subjectivity, and the Rise of the Eighteenth-Century Novel. 2020. Ohio U, PhD dissertation, rave.

ohiolink.edu/etdc/view?acc_num=ohiou1604057648041618. An examination of novels by Eliza Haywood, Samuel Richardson, Frances Burney, and Jane Austen, focusing on the ways in which female characters in each text experience, negotiate, or reject allocations of shame.

Donnelly, Bridget Catherine. Accidents Waiting to Happen: Plotting the Unexpected in the Eighteenth-Century Novel. 2020. U of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, PhD dissertation. ProQuest, www.proquest.com/docview/2436431293. Discusses the works of Henry Fielding, Samuel Richardson, Mary Hays, Frances Burney, and Jane Austen to show how coach accidents serve as comic plot devices, metaphors for the project of realism, methods for illustrating threats of sexual or domestic violence within the moving vehicle, and means of examining attitudes toward risk management.

Fernandez, Emmeline. “Every Family Might Also Be Called a State”: Incest and Politics in the Romantic Era. 2020. Ohio State U, PhD dissertation, rave.ohiolink.edu/etdc/view?acc_num=osu1587656293042995. A close reading of the incest motif in more than one dozen texts including the male Romantic poets Lord Byron and Percy Shelley, gothic writer Matthew Lewis, dramatist James Cobb, and the novelists Frances Burney, Mary Shelley, Ann Radcliffe, and Mary Robinson.

Kochkina, Svetlana. Evelina: A Life-Story of a Book, Told by Its Paratext. 2020. McGill U, PhD dissertation. ProQuest, www.proquest.com/docview/2543487356.

Kurtz, Teresa. The Politics of Touch. 2020. SUNY New Paltz, MA thesis, hdl.handle.net/20.500.12648/1490. Chapter 5 is titled “Sociological Touch: Touching Frances Burney’s Evelina.”

Nelson, Devon R. The Antiquarian Creation of a Musical Past in Eighteenth-Century Britain. 2020. Indiana U, PhD dissertation. ProQuest, www.proquest.com/docview/2407343864. An investigation of the anthologists’ reception of the first two general histories of music in English—Charles Burney’s General History of Music and John Hawkins’s General History of the Science and Practice of Music—in order to show that each historian’s relationship to particular groups of antiquaries affected the immediate reception of their histories.
