

The poster session at Annual MNI Epilepsy Day taking place this year on April 6, 2017 will provide a forum for academics, clinicians and students to share information and learn about the latest research on Epilepsy. The content of the poster sessions will be based on submitted abstracts in the field of neuroscience with a focus on Epilepsy and Neuroinflammation. This poster session will take place during the lunchtime session, 12:30 – 2:00 pm.

Following a review by the program scientific committee, authors of the most promising submissions will be asked to present their research. We are accepting applications to present from clinical and research fellows, residents, medical students, post-docs and graduate students. The abstract submission deadline is January 29, 2017. You will receive notification of your paper's acceptance by February 28, 2017.

Abstract Submission Guidelines:

- Abstracts should be limited to one page of text on a Word document, not to exceed 500 words.
- Presenting author's contact details should contain: email address, full postal address, telephone number, author details, full and first family name(s) and affiliation details (department/institution/hospital/city). Additional authors names and affiliations should be included.
- Single space, but leave a space between the title/author and the main text.

Submit your abstract to Debbie.rashcovsky@mcgill.ca