

McGill Division of Social & Transcultural Psychiatry & Global Mental Health Film Series

Autism In Love

Directed by Matt Fuller

Discussion to follow with Dr. Miranda D'Amico¹ & Dr. Jaswant Guzder²

Wednesday, March 30, 2016, 19:00 – 21:00
Institute of Community & Family Psychiatry, Amphitheatre
4333 Côte-Ste-Catherine Rd., Montreal, QC H3T 1E4

What happens when children with autism become adults with autism and want to have romantic relationships?

With beautiful cinematography and remarkable compassion, Autism In Love captures the everyday realities of autistic adulthood, showing how the members of this often-misunderstood community cope with the challenge of keeping romance alive over the years. Capturing both the joys and heartbreak of love, Fuller emphasizes struggles that are only too familiar, creating in Autism in Love a relatable and winning celebration of accepting the differences in others and in ourselves.

¹ Associate Dean of Student Academic Services, Arts and Sciences & Co-Directors of Research at the Centre for the Arts in Human Development, Concordia University

² Psychoanalyst and Professor in the McGill Department of Psychiatry, Head of Child Psychiatry and Director of Childhood Disorders Day Hospital at the Jewish General Hospital.