DR. FRASER N. GURD

DR. FRASER GURD (1914-1995) Dr. Fraser Gurd graduated from the Faculty of Medicine at McGill University in 1939. He succeeded Dr. H. Roche Robertson as Chairman of the Department of Surgery, McGill University in 1962. Throughout his career, Dr. Gurd demonstrated a remarkable interest in research with several significant investigations into the treatment of shock and trauma. Perhaps his greatest contribution relates to the development of surgical scientists. Dr. Gurd has received many honours including the Royal College's Duncan Graham Award for outstanding service in medical education. He was an Emeritus Professor of Surgery at McGill University. The presentations by the residents and fellows are a tribute to the many contributions of Dr. Fraser Gurd.
