Booths for the Consent Campaign:

Every day in the lounge, people from the consent campaign will be hosting a table with resource lists, info about consent, and goodie bags. The volunteers can also provide you with information on the rest of the campaign happening downtown. To the side, there will be a whiteboard on which you can write what consent means to you and how you can practice it. If you like being photographed, there will be someone there to snap you sharing your thoughts. Stop by to say hello and get the conversation going!

PJ Party Film Screening and Discussion:

Take a break from school to hang with your friends, munch some popcorn, and watch a movie! After the film, stick around for a guided discussion of how consent was or was not practiced throughout the story and brainstorm alternative courses of action for characters. BYOB (bring your own blanket).

Trivia Night

Put your consent knowledge to the test at a special edition trivia night at the Ceilidh pub. Do you know what the best way to support a survivor is? The stats about sexual assault? How to practice consent in your everyday life? Round up a team and challenge your friends to see who's the trivia master when it comes to consent.

Speaking Out About Consent

After trivia night, artists from McGill and the greater Montreal community will be sharing their spoken word pieces with the pub. Harm reduction volunteers will be present at the event in recognition of the often intense emotional nature of spoken word, and will be available for support. We are still looking for artists! If you have something to say, whether it is a personal story, abstract piece, solutions, we want to hear it! An honorarium will be provided for performers. If interested, please contact sarc.ods@mcgill.ca.
