A student will not receive confirmation of admission to the PhD in Oral Health Sciences program until a commitment of financial support is obtained from (a) a supervisor willing to financially support the student, or (b) has a scholarship from an external agency (e.g. CIHR; RSBO; FRQ, etc), or (c) a sponsorship from a foreign governmental, institution, or private dental center. The funding source, duration and amount must be clearly stated as a prerequisite for admission review and consideration.

As of Fall 2023, the annual stipend is as follows:

For an International Doctoral Student: The minimum stipend offered by our faculty is $37,000 for the first year, then a minimum of $32,000 for the second, and a minimum of $32,000 for the third year.

For a Canadian/ Permanent Resident Doctoral Student: The minimum stipend offered by our faculty is $24,000 per year, for 3 years.

(Note: From the minimum stipends indicated above, the supervisor is contributing a minimum of $15,000 for Year 1, $17,000 for Year 2, and $17,000 for Year 3, and the balance is paid by the faculty for international PhD students. For domestic PhD students, for year 1, 2, 3 the supervisor is responsible for a minimum of $10,000, $12,000, $12,000, respectively, and the balance is paid by the faculty.) The supervisor's contribution may vary if the student receives additional external or internal funding. Supervisors are reminded that a top-up is important if the student total financial package is too little for tuition and living expenses.
