ORAL ELEMENTARY FRENCH: HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES This course is designed for students from a variety of disciplines (health and social work) to help them interact with clients despite their basic level of French language skills. Various communication situations with clients in clinical settings, review of basic linguistic elements - lexical, grammatical and stylistic-used in professional communication. Acquisition of efficient communication strategies.

FRSL 210 3 credits. Winter. ORAL INTERMEDIATE 1 FRENCH: HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES This course is designed for students from a variety of disciplines (health and social work) to help them interact with clients despite their basic level of French language skills. Various situations of clinical communication with clients, study of linguistic elements taught at the intermediate 1 level - lexical, grammatical and stylistic-as used in professional communication. Acquisition of efficient communication strategies.

FRSL 219 3 credits. Fall. Macdonald Campus. ORAL INTERMEDIATE 1 AND 2 FRENCH: NUTRITION AND DIETETICS This course is designed for future dietitians and nutritionists at an intermediate level, but not French speaking, who would like to improve their French oral and written skills while studying specialized vocabulary related to dietetics and nutrition. This course will help prepare them for practicums or work placements (stages) in French speaking environments as well as for their professional exams. Topics of discussion, grammar points, exercises and activities focus on developing the necessary French skills for these future professionals to carry out their tasks as dietitians and nutritionists.

FRSL 329 / FRSL 330 3 credits each. Fall / Winter WRITTEN INTERMEDIATE 2 FRENCH: HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES Written communication in health and social service professions must be clear and precise so that the message can be understood by all members of the healthcare team. Using a dynamic and interactive approach, this French course offers sample texts that provide a variety of discourse styles (informative, narrative, prescriptive, opinion pieces, a variety of styles) in several formats (texts, letters, memos and case reports), this course helps students improve their written communication while reviewing some of the finer grammar points (tense sequencing, pronoun forms, use of verbal modes, etc.)

FIGF PMCO No credits. No fees. Winter. Summer. ORAL INTERMEDIATE 2 AND ADVANCED FRENCH: HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES Oral communication practice in the form of exercises, discussions and role-play, with an emphasis on specialized vocabulary and useful sentence structures. Oral comprehension will be enhanced by regular viewing of videos as well as during discussions and simulations of professional-client situations. The course pack is distributed free of charge.

FIGF PMCE No credits. No fees. Summer WRITTEN INTERMEDIATE 2 AND ADVANCED FRENCH: HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES This course helps students whose written French skills are not as fluent as their oral skills. They will improve their ability to choose correct grammar and linguistic terms. After studying model texts, students will write similar ones using appropriate sentence structure and vocabulary in preparation for written communication with professional colleagues as well as for the French exam administered by l'Office québécois de la langue française. The course pack is distributed free of charge.
