He joined the Department of Civil Engineering in 1956, and until his retirement in 1990, he made great contributions to the Department, the University, and the Civil Engineering profession over his distinguished, 34-year career at McGill. Dave was a dedicated and gifted teacher. Many generations of students in Civil Engineering and Architecture attended his courses, and all remember him for the care and attention that he devoted to both the subject and the students.

He ensured that students understood the profession which they were to practice, and was able to pass on to them his intimate knowledge of the important relationships between engineers and architects. His main field of expertise was Structural Engineering, and his advice was sought after by leading companies in Canada and abroad.
