It gives me great pleasure to invite you to our to be held this coming September 16-18. This year's theme and the focus for discussion will be "Health-related quality of life and best interests of the child".

This not-to-be-missed event will bring together many practitioners, researchers, partners and social entrepreneurs from various fields, all committed to improving the well-being of children at risk.

Community social pediatrics aims above all to improve children's quality of life, always taking their best interests into account. For this reason, it is important to take time together to measure our impact on children's well-being, with a special emphasis on examining current practice, public policy and research.

But this Symposium's ultimate goal remains: take action! We sincerely hope that our discussions will lead to concrete actions that we can apply in our respective communities. This way, we will be sure we are truly helping children.

I hope to have the pleasure of seeing you at the Symposium!
