

MCGILL FAMILY MEDICINE RESEARCH SEMINARS

“Cultural Safety and Intercultural Dialogue in Family Medicine”

Ivan Sarmiento BSc MPH & Juan Pimentel MD MSc (Epidem)

Ivan Sarmiento and Juan Pimentel are Colombian PhD students in PRAM, in the Department of Family Medicine. They share around two decades of work with indigenous communities in Colombia and Mexico, where they are active in development of methods addressing cultural safety, participatory indigenous health research and intercultural epidemiology. They see cultural diversity as a neglected resource in family medicine, and their PhD projects explore ways to leverage this for improved health service delivery. Their research explores how respect, dialogue, and listening to community voices can be part of medical training and delivery of primary health care. They argue that cultural safety is pivotal to increasing the impact and coverage of primary health care.

Thursday October 4, 2018

From 12:30-2:00 p.m.

Department of Family Medicine

5858 ch. de la Côte-des-Neiges, 3rd floor, suite 300

BRING YOUR LUNCH! There will be light refreshments.
There is no parking on site and parking is limited in the area.
Taxis and public transport are advised.

Cannot make the seminar physically, but wish to attend? Please join the webinar here.
(Note: Students from FMED 504 are expected to attend)

McGill

Department of Family Medicine

Département de médecine de famille