

MCGILL FAMILY MEDICINE EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH GROUP (FMER) ADVANCED SEMINARS

MCGILL DEPARTMENT OF FAMILY MEDICINE, RESEARCH DIVISION
& MCGILL FAMILY MEDICINE EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH GROUP (FMER)

PRESENT:

“HOW YOUNG DOCTORS LEARN DECISION-MAKING IN THE CONTEXT OF FAMILY MEDICINE IN DENMARK”

Dr. Torsten Risør

Torsten Risør, MD, PhD, is a Danish family physician, living in Tromsø, Norway since 2010 with his wife and two children. He is the Director of medical education in Northern Norway since 2012, and is also a part-time clinician. His research themes include: 1) the socialization of medical students, 2) how young doctors learn decision-making in internship, and 3) how experienced rural GPs manage uncertainty in daily clinical practice. He is on sabbatical at McGill University September 2017 - July 2018.

Thursday November 23, 2017
From 12:30-2:00 p.m.
Department of Family Medicine
5858 ch. de la Côte-des-Neiges, 3rd floor, suite 300

BRING YOUR LUNCH!

There is no parking on site and parking is limited in the area.
Taxis and public transport are advised.

Cannot make the seminar physically, but would like to attend? Please register for the webinar here.
(Note: Students from FMED 504 are expected to attend)

McGill

Department of
Family Medicine | Département de
médecine de famille