

Instructor needed for GEOG 217 (Cities in the Modern World)

Cities in the Modern World is a large, co-taught, introductory lecture course that covers core areas of urban geography and urban studies. The instructor will be responsible for the first half of the course, but must work in close cooperation with the other instructor. Thematically, the first part of the course focuses on classic urban topics such as central place theory, urban systems, transportation and morphology, and the history of urban planning and development in the 20th century. Regionally, case studies are drawn from North America (especially Canada) and Europe. Applicants should have a PhD in hand, or be in the later stages of completing a PhD in Geography or closely related urban studies field.

Salary: $4,110.00 (salary may increase due to new collective agreement)

Term: Winter 2019 semester

Qualifications: Senior PhD student or PhD in Geography or related field. Must show evidence of experience in Geography or closely related urban studies field.

The University may, at its discretion, assign the person of its choice to give this Course/Teaching.

Please apply by e-mail with a letter of interest explaining how you think the course should be designed and a CV to Marisa Mastroberardino marisa.mastroberardino@mcgill.ca
