IHSP Conference, 26 & 27 April, 2018

This conference is a chance to reflect on the broad societal implications and policy challenges of the Canadian federal government's decision to legalize marijuana and to learn from the experience of states and jurisdictions that have undergone similar legislative change. The conference will examine all aspects of the policy challenges that face Canada as it moves to legalize marijuana – from clinical considerations to do with health, to public safety, to Canada's international legal obligations and the economic and political implications of legalization. We will hear from academics, policy-makers and high-ranking government officials from Canada, Portugal and Uruguay. Registration details coming soon.
