The IPN*Star Award

The IPN*Star award acknowledges the accomplishments of IPN students who have published first author articles in the past year. Specifically, IPN trainees who have authored one or more first author (or co-first author) publication(s) will receive a monetary award to recognize their achievement(s).

Eligibility:

- Trainee must be currently registered, and in good standing in the IPN.
- Post-doctoral fellows are not eligible
- Trainee must be first author, or co-first author, on the paper.
- Paper must have a publication date or acceptance date between January 1, 2018 and December 31, 2018. Papers that have been accepted between these dates but have not as yet appeared online or in press are also eligible.
- Manuscripts currently in preparation, submitted, under review or under secondary/tertiary revision are not eligible this year.
- The paper must present research work conducted as an IPN trainee. Publications reflecting work conducted in other universities or to satisfy previous degree requirements (e.g., undergraduate degree from McGill or another university, MSc degree from another university) are not eligible.
- Paper may deal with any area of neuroscience-related research.
- Maximum award value:
  - $1000 for trainees who have published one or more first or co-first authored scientific research papers.
  - $500 for students who have published one or more first or co-first authored review papers (and no scientific papers)

To apply:

1. Submit proof of publication or acceptance for ALL first or co-first authored scientific and/or review articles (i.e., provide proof for all first or co-first authored papers within the January 1-December 31 2018 timeframe).

a. Proof of publication: Submit a PDF copy of the publication OR a link to the online publication.

b. Proof of acceptance (for articles in press): submit a copy of the letter/email of acceptance from the journal editor.

2. All documents should be submitted electronically to katherine.vanka@mcgill.ca no later than 5:00 PM, Friday, January 18, 2019. Late or incomplete submissions will not be accepted.
