To Whom It May Concern,

Faculty of Law, McGill University students are required to take 32 credits in their first year of studies to ensure full-time student status. First-year courses are yearlong courses that yield a final grade at the end of the academic year only. These grades are midterm grades, and are intended to provide pedagogical feedback to students and instructors only.

The Faculty of Law does not release December mid-term grades for first-year full-year courses. The final grade for first year courses will be visible on the student's official McGill transcript at the end of the winter term (May).

If you require additional information on our grading scheme, please visit the Faculty of Law web site: <http://www.mcgill.ca/law-studies/courses-registration-exams/grades#Midterm>.
