To Whom It May Concern,

First-year students at the Faculty of Law at McGill University are required to take 33 credits in their first year of studies to ensure full-time student status. First-year courses are year-long courses that yield a final grade at the end of the academic year only. Due to the nature of the grading of these courses, mid-term/Fall semester grades are not indicated on their transcripts at the end of the first semester.

These mid-term grades are intended to provide pedagogical feedback to students and instructors only. The final grade for first-year courses will be visible on the student's (un)official McGill transcript at the end of the Winter term (in the month of May).

If you require additional information on our grading scheme, please visit the Faculty of Law website: <https://www.mcgill.ca/law-studies/courses/policies/grades#MIDTERM>.
