A Guide to Reference Sources in English and Chinese

This new guide to selected reference sources in the McGill Libraries for Sinology, the study of the language, history, literature and civilization of China, is a greatly expanded version of the guide published in 1982. Since that earlier edition our collection of Chinese language reference materials has grown substantially and the Chinese-Japanese-Korean collection continues to be enriched into a solid basic collection. Therefore, the incorporation of Chinese language tools in this new guide is a major change.

A second change is the appearance of electronic reference resources noted in Section VII. A. 1. We encourage users of this bibliographic guide to refer to the East Asian Studies subject page by clicking from the Libraries home page to the Subject Guides page and select East Asian Studies: <http://www.library.mcgill.ca/human/SUBGUIDE/eastasia/eastasia.htm>
Here you will find a variety of electronic guides, indexes, and full-text materials

The Government Documents Department of McLennan-Redpath Library is an important repository of both reference materials and original documents pertaining to China. They include the publications of the United States Joint Publications Research Service which include a vast array of translations from original sources. Transdex Index (US1 JPRS W55 Govt. Docs) provides thorough indexing of this series. For electronic sources click on Databases by Subject from the Libraries home page and select the category, Government Documents:

<http://www.library.mcgill.ca/cdroms/javaindex.htm>

Newspapers, whether in microform or original paper are located in our Serials and Microforms Service. A card file of newspapers in the McGill Libraries organized by place of publication is available for consultation at the Reference Desk. An excellent source for newspapers published in China, both in Chinese and in Western languages, is the Center for Research Libraries. As a member library, McGill may borrow from the CRL collection on behalf of its users; we benefit from their newspapers, periodicals, press summaries and clipping file on China. Complete information is available at the Interlibrary Loans Service in McLennan.

This guide should be used in conjunction with the Reference Department's other guides to reference resources in such pertinent areas as political science, international relations, linguistics, etc., all of which are available for consultation at the Reference Desk.

If you have any difficulty using this bibliography or the reference sources listed in it, please do not hesitate to ask for assistance at the Reference Desk.

This bibliography was compiled by Su Chen, Library Technical Services, and edited by Suzy M. Slavin, Reference Department.
