 Read the sentences aloud to the patient up to three times in accordance with the patient's requests for the repetition and circle the digit corresponding to the number of times that the text was read. The score corresponds to the number of word groups (as indicated in the suggested translation in parentheses) correctly translated. Circle the number corresponding to the number of word groups containing no error. An omission also counts as an error. If all groups contain one or more errors, or if the patient says nothing, after three consecutive repetitions, circle "0." If the patient's translation is not the one suggested but nevertheless acceptable, circle "+".

 In this section the patient must indicate whether a sentence which is read to him /her is a correct English sentence or not. If the patient judges the sentence to be ungrammatical, she or he is asked to make it right. For the patient's judgment, circle "+" if the patient considers the sentence to be correct, irrespective of whether the patient is right or wrong, circle "-" if the patient considers the sentence to be incorrect, and "0" if the patient gives no answer. Then score the corrected sentence "+" if acceptable, "-" if unacceptable, and "0" if the patient declares that she or he is unable to make it right, or if the patient says nothing. When a correct sentence (500, 504) is declared incorrect, and subsequently made wrong, score "-" for both judgment and correction. If the patient makes some changes to the sentence which does not make it incorrect, then score "+" for the correction.

 Start reading aloud here.

I am going to give you some English sentences. Tell me if they are correct English sentences. If they are not, I will ask you to make them right. For example, if I say: "he is thinking to his mother" you say: "incorrect" and you correct it: "he is thinking of his mother." Ready?
