Nursing Explorations is a biennial event that brings together key stakeholders of the profession, namely senior nurse leaders of major health care institutions, managers, advanced practice nurses, clinical nurse specialists, nurse practitioners, nurse clinicians, nurse educators and researchers. These health care professionals are influential in communicating pivotal information to their organizations and contributing to the decision making of current and future choices about products and technology that can improve nursing practice and patient outcomes.

Nursing Explorations 2018 strives to secure partnerships with private organizations and foundations for both financial support and recognition of the activity. Information about the conference will be communicated directly to the Deans and Directors of the University Schools of Medicine and Nursing across Canada; the Directors of Professional Services at the McGill teaching hospitals; the Directors of Nursing in the Hospitals and Community Health and Social Service Network in Quebec; RUIS McGill; the Order of Nurses and the two Ministries of Health and Education in Quebec; and through Communications and Alumnae Relations at the McGill University Faculty of Medicine.

CNE Credits have been applied for and will be available for health professionals.

Significant time has been allocated for networking and exchange with participants during the registration period, the morning break, the luncheon/dessert, and the afternoon break.

Your support of this well-attended event ensures a high profile for your organization and demonstrates your commitment to exploring innovative ideas and approaches primarily directed toward improving health environments and clinical practice that results in achieving excellence in patient care.
