

Creating an Active and Efficient Study Group

Created by Joey Faria (Learning Resources Intern), Isabella Scurfield (Learning Resources Intern)
& Patricia Diaz del Castillo (Learning Resources Advisor)

Office for Students with Disabilities, McGill University (2016)

Choosing Group Members

- 3-4 people max (if more people want to join, make two study groups!)
- Do not choose study group members based on friendship
- Choose members who have a variety of strengths and weaknesses: maybe you take good notes and another member asks important questions. Try to balance each other out.
- Ask your professor, TA, and/or advisors to help you find students who might be interested

How to Stay in Contact

- As a group decide what the best way is to contact each other. You may choose to contact each other by:
 - Email
 - Social media (Facebook group)
 - Text message
- Whatever method you choose be sure it is one members will check regularly to ensure you are all up-to-date and on the same page.

Benefits of Joining a Study Group

- Studies show that students who study in groups often have the highest grades and the least amount of academic problems (Gardner & Barefoot, 2012)
- You always have someone to turn to when something is unclear, you miss a class or need help studying
- Study group members are there to help give you feedback on your comprehension

References:

- Gardner, J. N. & Barefoot, B. O. (2012). Your College Experience: Strategies for Success. (10th ed. ed.) Boston, MA: Bedford/St. Martin's.
- Johnson, M. (2016). How to Organize and Conduct Effective Study Groups [Website]. Retrieved September 23rd, 2016, from <http://ctl.byu.edu/how-organize-and-conduct-effective-study-groups>
- Oakley, B., Felder R., Brent, R., Elhadj, I. (2004). Turning Student Groups into Effective Teams. Journal of Student Centered Learning, 2(1), 9-34.
- Pryanikova, A. (2007). How to Form and Effective Study Group [Website]. Retrieved September 23rd, 2016, from http://lawsagna.typepad.com/lawsagna/2007/04/how_to_form_an_.html
- University of Guelph (2016). Being An Effective Study Group [Website]. Retrieved September 23rd, 2016, from <https://studygroups.lib.uoguelph.ca/index.cfm/event/effective-study-group/>
- Wong, L. (2012). Essential Study Skills. (7th ed. ed.) Boston, MA: Wadsworth Cengage Learning.