What to expect when you’re expecting philosophy

Philosophy, at its roots, can be seen as a search for wisdom: a quest for better understanding of ourselves and the world. In this course, we will examine how this idea is carried out in three of the world’s major philosophical traditions: in classical Greece, China, and India, as well as in a selection from contemporary philosophers.

Although the history of ideas across the globe is worth studying for its own sake, one of the goals of this course is to show that they are not merely historical curiosities: they are “alive” and meaningful in our lives today.

The emphasis in this course will be on questions of metaphysics (reality, the nature of things, etc.) and the theory of knowledge. This is to avoid overlap with the other introductory philosophy course to be offered in Winter 2023 – The Good Life (PHIL 202), which is expected to focus on ethical and political philosophy.

Required Course Materials:

All of the readings will be provided through MyCourses, either as PDFs or as links to papers and e-books accessible via McGill’s library.
Instructional Method:

For the first two weeks, lectures will take place Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Starting from the third week of lectures, the Friday lecture will be replaced by a tutorial conference (see below).

The lectures will be recorded and posted on MyCourses. Nevertheless, students are strongly encouraged to attend in person, especially since in-person studying has proved to be more pedagogically effective than watching a recorded lecture. For the best results, students should read the assigned materials before attending the relevant lectures.

Tutorial conferences with the TAs: starting on the third week of lectures and until the 12th week of the course, inclusive, the Friday lecture is replaced by tutorial conferences with a TA. During the very last week of classes, we will once again have lectures on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday (see detailed schedule below).

Attendance in these conferences is required, and there will be assignments linked with the conferences (see below). Students who cannot attend some or all conferences due to a serious reason outside their control should contact the instructor as soon as possible to work out alternative work for the same credit. Please note that these classes with the TAs will not be recorded.

Schedule of Topics and Readings

Part 1: The Love of Wisdom – Is Real Knowledge Possible?

Although there are historically earlier philosophers, the ‘Western’ tradition of philosophy is often said to start with Socrates and Plato, and so we shall begin there, too. Socrates, the founding figure, was an enigmatic figure to his contemporaries and remains so for us; what was his “love of wisdom”? From there, we shall move on to discuss Plato’s famous parable of the cave, discuss a surprising connection between knowledge and love, and consider the limitations of possible knowledge for beings such as ourselves.

Part 2: If I have not myself, whom have I?

There can be nothing closer to us than our very selves, and yet, how well do we understand the nature of this ‘self’? In this part of the course, we will consider several different ways of thinking about this question, starting with two conceptions that emphasize the connection between ‘self’ and moral responsibility (in classical India and in one strand of modern thought on this topic), moving on to consider two alternative views: the Buddhist view that there is in fact no self, as well as an African view of the nature of self.

Part 3: Is there any hope of meaning in an indifferent cosmos?

One of the greatest philosophical challenges of modern times is to make sense of our existence in a natural world: in the scientific worldview, it seems that the world is thought of as no more than the sum of interactions of its basic building-blocks, guided by physical laws that have no consciousness, and in which there is no plan for us. Does this view of the world leave room for a meaningful existence? We will consider several ways of answering ‘yes’ to this question.

Reading assignments
You will need to complete 5 out of 6 of the reading assignments that will be distributed on MyCourses throughout the term. (You are welcome to complete all six, in which case the best five will be used to calculate your final mark.)

Each reading assignment will be available at least one week before it is due. Please note that because the answer to the reading assignment will be discussed in class after the due-date, late reading assignments will not be accepted unless you have written permission from the instructor. If there are special circumstances (e.g., being sick for more than one day, etc.), the instructor may assign an alternative reading assignment.

Conference-related assignments
Starting from the third week of classes, the Thursday lecture is replaced by tutorial conferences. In each such conference there will be a short in-class assignment to do and to submit. You are expected to complete 6 out of 9 such assignments, and to do so you must attend your conference. These assignments will not be distributed on MyCourses. You can miss up to three conferences for any reason. If you have a valid reason for missing more than three conferences, please contact the instructor and we will find alternative work for the same credit.

Final exam
The due date for the exam is the date that will appear in the exam schedule determined by McGill, and this is when the exam needs to be handed in. The exam will be posted in the assignments tab in MyCourses at least 72 hours before the due date, but I will do my best to post it earlier than that, giving more time in which to write it.

Policy on extensions and late work
If you have a valid reason to ask for an extension, please write to me (oran.magal@mcgill.ca), not to your TA, before the relevant work is due. As a rule, extensions will be given only for medical reasons or serious personal/family issues.

How to Submit Your Work
Submitting work through MyCourses: reading assignments and essay instructions will be distributed through MyCourses (in the ‘assignments’ tab of the course page), and students should submit their work through the same part of the course page on MyCourses. Do not send your work by email to the instructor or the TAs unless you are specifically asked to do so.

Important: submit all work in PDF or DOCX (Microsoft Word) file formats. Microsoft Word (for PC or Mac) is provided to you for free through McGill. If you are using any other software, simply use export or save as to save your work as a PDF prior to submitting it. Files submitted in other formats will not be graded, and will not count as work submitted.
McGill Policies and Statements

Language of Submission

In accord with McGill University’s Charter of Students’ Rights, students in this course have the right to submit in English or in French any written work that is to be graded. This does not apply to courses in which acquiring proficiency in a language is one of the objectives.

Conformément à la Charte des droits de l’étudiant de l’Université McGill, chaque étudiant a le droit de soumettre en français ou en anglais tout travail écrit devant être noté (sauf dans le cas des cours dont l’un des objets est la maîtrise d’une langue).

Academic Integrity

McGill University values academic integrity. Therefore, all students must understand the meaning and consequences of cheating, plagiarism and other academic offences under the Code of Student Conduct and Disciplinary Procedures. (see www.mcgill.ca/students/srr/honest/ for more information)

Varia

Mobile computing and communications devices are permitted in class insofar as their use does not disrupt the teaching and learning process. Please do not record the lectures without instructor’s permission.

Instructor-generated course materials (e.g., handouts, notes, summaries, exam questions, etc.) are protected by law and may not be copied or distributed in any form or in any medium without explicit permission of the instructor. Note that infringements of copyright can be subject to follow up by the University under the Code of Student Conduct and Disciplinary Procedures.

As the instructor of this course I endeavor to provide an inclusive learning environment. However, if you experience barriers to learning in this course, do not hesitate to discuss them with me and the Office for Students with Disabilities, 514-398-6009.

McGill University is on land which has long served as a site of meeting and exchange amongst Indigenous peoples, including the Haudenosaunee and Anishinabeg nations. We acknowledge and thank the diverse Indigenous people whose footsteps have marked this territory on which peoples of the world now gather.
