

Assistant Professor: Community Engagement and Indigenous Teacher Education

The Department of Integrated Studies in Education (DISE) invites applications for a tenure-stream appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor with a specialisation in Indigenous Teacher Education. Working closely with the department's Office of First Nations and Inuit Education (OFNIE) the successful candidate will have lived experience in Indigenous communities, working with Indigenous learners and/or communities and be committed to teaching and educational innovation in the field of teacher education and community partnerships. The ideal candidate would support program development, curriculum design, and pedagogical innovation for OFNIE's new and existing Indigenous partners. The candidate will also support OFNIE in identifying new potential partnerships. The candidate's responsibilities will include teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels, both in-community and on-campus, and the supervision of Master's and Doctoral students involved in Indigenous education. Importantly, a new hire in Indigenous teacher education will contribute to strengthening knowledge and understanding of Indigenous culture for non-Indigenous students in DISE through teaching and awareness-related activities on campus as well as supporting developing scholars in the DISE graduate programs.

DISE (Department of Integrated Studies In Education) faculty members are expected to teach at the undergraduate and graduate levels and supervise Master's and Doctoral level students, as well as contribute to service in the Department, the Faculty of Education and the University. Applicants for this position should submit the following documents by email: letter of application; curriculum vitae; statement of candidate's relationship to indigenous communities and identity; research statement; a sample publication; and names of three referees.

Applications should be submitted electronically to steven.jordan@mcgill.ca. Review of applications will commence in early February 2021, and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries concerning this position can be made to the chair of the department, Dr. Steven Jordan.

McGill University hires on the basis of merit and is strongly committed to equity and diversity within its community. We welcome and encourage applications from racialized persons/visible minorities, women, Indigenous persons, persons with disabilities, ethnic minorities, and persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities, as well as from all qualified candidates with the skills and knowledge to productively engage with diverse communities. Please note that preference will be given to candidates of Indigenous identity in filling this position.

McGill further recognizes and fairly considers the impact of leaves (e.g., family care or health-related) that may contribute to career interruptions or slowdowns. Candidates are encouraged to signal any leave that affected productivity, may have had an effect on their career path. This information will be considered to ensure the equitable assessment of the candidate's record.

McGill implements an employment equity program and encourages members of designated equity groups to self-identify. It further seeks to ensure the equitable treatment and full inclusion of persons with disabilities by striving for the implementation of universal design principles transversally, across all facets of the University community, and through accommodation policies and procedures. Persons with disabilities who anticipate needing accommodations for any part of the application process may contact, in confidence, Professor Angela Campbell, Associate Provost (Equity and Academic Policies) by email or phone at 514-398-1660.

All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian Immigration requirements, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.
