

In addition to our panelists, the colloquium will feature a keynote lecture by Professor Miranda Crowdus (Concordia University) titled “Sounding and Listening Interventions for Decolonial Pedagogies in Religious Studies.” Further information on the presentations is included below.

The colloquium is open to the public, though capacity is limited. We kindly request those attending to RSVP via email at: jordan.molot@concordia.ca. Recipients of this message are further invited to share this event with contacts who may be interested in participating.

We look forward to seeing you there.

Warmly, Jordan Molot & Lucie Robathan (DSRW co-Chairs)
Elyse MacLeod & Amanda Rosini (Arc editorial team)

Confirmed Presentations:

Gaëlle Boscals de Réals (McGill)
Chinese Religions: (Re)exploring Imagined Categories and Their Consequences.

Paulina Kralka (EXPM) and Alexander Dieplam (McGill)
Explorations in Decolonising Buddhist Studies: Perspectives from the Conservation Studio.

Ellen Dobrowolski (Concordia)
The Many Relatives of Métis Missionary, Sara Riel: Centering Relationality in the Study of Indigenous Religious Traditions.

Colby Gaudet (Concordia)
Questioning Devotions, Reorienting Commitments: Using Christian Religious Archives and Church History to Study Indian Residential Schools.

Mriti Gyana (McGill)
Monastery to McGill: Decolonizing Buddhist Studies in Tibetan Monasteries in Exile.

Jordan Molot (Concordia)
From Descent to Dissent: Mapping Decoloniality in Contemporary Jewish Discourse.

Ana de Souza (McGill)
Imagining Difference in an Anti-Colonial Nation Through Contemporary Hindutva.