Rationale	This course is a good theoretical introduction to our 400-level course entitled Sensory Ethnography in which students are required to produce ethnographic films. We have not previously offered a course that provides students with the appropriate theoretical background for that course which has resulted in poorly prepared students.
Responsible Instructor
Course Description	An introduction to the role of the image in everyday life as it is revealed ethnographically. Topics will include the role of the image in thinking, dreaming, knowing, feeling and acting. An investigation of the way images, of one sort or another, constitute the material out of which much anthropological analysis is built.
