What can TB learn from the HIV movement

Dr. Vidya Krishnan

Health & Science Editor, The Hindu

Vidya Krishnan is the Health & Science Editor for The Hindu. Vidya is a New Delhi based journalist, with over 15 years of experience in covering public health in India.

She completed her Masters degree from the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London in 2011. After returning to India, she consulted with the Indian Health Ministry's think tank Public Health Foundation of India while writing for Mint. In 2014, she authored India's National Health Profile for the India office of the World Health Organization, SEARO.

For PHFI & WHO, her work was mainly to gather health intelligence, document India's epidemiological changes in the past decade, map health financing and policy trends to help government decision making.

Previously, she covered public health for national dailies like The Indian Express and The Hindustan Times. She has also contributed to the British Medical Journal and Caravan Magazine.
