

Teasdale-Corti GHRI Trauma & Global Health (TGH)

Political violence, natural disasters and mental health outcomes:
developing innovative health policies and interventions

Rethinking evaluation & reporting practices

Consuelo Errazuriz

McGill -Douglas Mental Health University Institute, April 2009

<http://www.mcgill.ca/trauma-globalhealth>

Vision statement, Why?

In the context of war and conflict → civilian populations exposed to extreme violence and natural disasters, we aim to:

Reduce the burden of mental illness.

Promote healing, rehabilitation and recovery.

Generate improved mental health policies and services.

Mission statement, How?

To reach those aims, the TGH Program has three main spheres of action:

1. R&D: research and documentation
2. CB: capacity building, and
3. KT: knowledge translation.

Main challenges

The complexity and significant differences among the four countries.

Different levels of institutional development of our partners institutions.

The need for our work to be local and culture specific.

Lack of input/guidance in reporting and evaluation

Rethinking Reporting & Evaluation: questions for discussion

1. Advantages and disadvantages in reporting and evaluation as we have done it. What did we expect to learn?
2. How did the reports inform our practice and thinking about the program? To whom are we reporting?
3. What went well and what were the challenges?
4. Most important process and output indicators of TGH program?
5. What would you have done differently ?