Elective Description
Elective opportunities are offered to medical students. The rotation in Pediatric Otolaryngology provides good exposure to problems of the upper aerodigestive tract, including trauma, infections, congenital anomalies and head and neck oncology.
Elective Duration
2, 3 or 4 weeks
Scope of Work
The student will participate in the clinical activities of the Division which include clinics, emergency cases, assisting in the operating room as well as in-patient care. Participation in a clinical project is also encouraged. The students should attend the University Grand Rounds held at 17:00 hrs. every Thursday and the hospital rounds (MCH) on Mondays at 16:00 hrs., and are invited to the other educational activities (guest professor lectures, resident competitions, etc.) that occur throughout the academic year. The student is expected to present a clinical scenario once during the rotation to the Staff and Resident during one of the hospital rounds or University Grand Rounds.
