Elective Description
Available to one student at any one time. The student will be attached to the Plastic Surgery Department and would be encouraged to partake actively in the clinical evaluation of patients and assessment for surgery. The student will be expected to take part in ward rounds, outdoor clinics and to observe and assist in the operative procedures. Clinical research into the problems of congenital hand deformities and hemangiomas could form a portion of this elective and statistical survey of these and other conditions that are treated on this service would make the program of greater value to the participating student.
