Interested in studying at McGill? Take the first step by connecting with us. Join our mailing list, or reach out to speak directly with an Indigenous recruiter.

Dedicated funding is available for Indigenous students
You may also be eligible for bursaries and funding programs offered by the government and McGill.

McGill Okànra Undergraduate Award
All incoming and returning Indigenous undergraduate students are eligible for funding through Indspire of $5,000 per year, up to $20,000 for a four year degree program.

Provost’s Indigenous Achievement Award
This is a $5,000 renewable admissions award given to Indigenous students with exceptional high school or CEGEP grades, and who are not granted a McGill Entrance Scholarship. One-time awards are issued every year based on academic merit and all incoming students are automatically considered.

*Please note that funding for these awards is available to Canadian citizens only.

Indigenous Graduate Excellence Recruitment Fellowship
This non-renewable award, paid in installments over the first 12 months of study, provides support in addition to the core funding offered by a department, supervisor, or Faculty.

- Funding available: PhD - $10,000 | Masters (Thesis) - $7,500 | Masters (Non-Thesis) - $4,500
Join a supportive campus community

The First Peoples’ House is the hub of Indigenous life on campus. They offer services, facilities, programs and events to help you build a community and succeed, from your first day as a student until convocation.

Find your place on campus
For many first-year students, moving away from home is a big transition. McGill’s condition offers a supportive and supportive living community where you can develop personally, socially, and academically. All first-year students are guaranteed housing if they apply for it. Limited subsidized housing is available for Indigenous students.

Indigenous student orientation
Take part in activities and connect with student groups. Get to know your community at McGill. Join fellow students and cast a stone at the First Peoples’ House.

Cultural events
Our vibrant culture at McGill is made together. Stay connected with the Indigenous Knowledge Lecture Series, pipe ceremonies, workshops, Indigenous Awareness Week, social gatherings and more.

Celebrate your successes, and support each other
Indigenous graduates participate in a traditional powwow, including a Circle of Honour, where they receive ceremonial gifts and are celebrated by the community.

Learn more about First Peoples’ House

Find the right program for you

You can have an enriching education at McGill, with hundreds of programs offered for every interest. Follow your passions and apply to the program that is best for you.

Undergraduate studies
At McGill, we face challenges with determination and optimism. With 300+ programs and real-world learning opportunities, the McGill experience offers new pathways of education and prepares you for a successful career.

The Indigenous Applicants Protocol encourages admissions decision-makers to take educational experiences that are unique to Indigenous applicants into consideration. It also helps McGill’s dedicated Indigenous student recruitment advisor connect with applicants to share more information about support services and funding opportunities.

Medical
The Faculty of Medicine aims to train more Indigenous health professionals, and to educate the greater population about the health needs of Indigenous people.
Learn more: mcgill.ca/3pg

Law
The Faculty of Law offers programs and courses focused on Indigenous law and governance. You can gain practical work experience and participate in outreach programs to local Indigenous communities.
Learn more: mcgill.ca/3SA

Graduate studies
McGill has a bold history of research guided by driven faculty at the top of their fields. Over 1,600 tenured faculty members research and teach in more than 400 graduate programs.
Join a diverse community committed to challenging the boundaries of knowledge and shaping a better future.
Find your desired area of research: mcgill.ca/gradapplicants/programs

Online continuing education programs
McGill’s School of Continuing Studies offers online certificates programs in Indigenous Business Management, Computers and Information Technology and Public Administration and Governance. These courses are university-level, undergraduates, for credit programs. The programs are part-time, take about 2½ years to complete, and can be completed entirely from your home.

Interested in applying?

Interested in applying?

Learn about the admissions process

Explore continuing education programs
The First Peoples’ House is the hub of Indigenous life on campus. They offer services, facilities, programs and events to help you build a community and succeed, from your first day as a student until convocation.

Find the right program for you
You can have an enriching education at McGill, with hundreds of programs offered for every interest. Follow your passions and apply to the program that is best for you.

Undergraduate studies
At McGill, we face challenges with determination and optimism. With 300+ programs and real-world learning opportunities, the McGill experience offers new pathways of education and prepares you for a successful career.

The Indigenous Applicants Protocol encourages admissions decision-makers to take educational experiences that are unique to Indigenous applicants into consideration. It also helps McGill’s dedicated Indigenous student recruitment advisor connect with applicants to share more information about support services and funding opportunities.

Medicine
The Faculty of Medicine aims to train more Indigenous health professionals, and to educate the greater population about the health needs of Indigenous peoples.
Learn more: mcgill.ca/x/3pg

Law
The Faculty of Law offers programs and courses focused on Indigenous law and governance. You can gain practical work experience and participate in outreach programs in local Indigenous communities.
Learn more: mcgill.ca/x/3SA

Graduate studies
McGill has a bold history of research guided by driven faculty at the top of their fields. Over 1,600 tenured faculty members research and teach in more than 400 graduate programs. Join a diverse community committed to challenging the boundaries of knowledge and shaping a better future.

Find your desired area of research: mcgill.ca/gradapplicants/programs

Online continuing education programs
McGill’s School of Continuing Studies offers online certificate programs in Indigenous Business Management, Computers and Information Technology and Public Administration and Governance.

Learn more about the admissions process
Explore continuing education programs

Indigenous student orientation
Take part in activities and connect with student groups. Let’s know your community at McGill. Join fellow students andcraft a patch at the First Peoples’ House.

Cultural events
Our vibrant culture at McGill is made together. Stay connected with the Indigenous Knowledge Lecture Series, pipe ceremonies, workshops, Indigenous Awareness Weeks, social gatherings and more.

Celebrate your successes, and support each other
Indigenous graduates participate in a traditional powwow, including a Circle of Honour, where they receive ceremonial gifts and are celebrated by the community.

Learn more about First Peoples’ House
Interested in applying?
Learn more about the admissions process
Explore continuing education programs

McGill University is located on land which has long served as a site of meeting and exchange amongst Indigenous peoples, including the Haudenosaunee and Anishinabeg nations. McGill honours, recognizes and respects these nations as the traditional stewards of the lands and waters on which we meet today.
The First Peoples’ House is the hub of Indigenous life on campus. They offer services, facilities, programs and events to help you build a community and succeed, from your first day as a student until convocation.

Find the right program for you

You can have an enriching education at McGill, with hundreds of programs offered for every interest. Follow your passions and apply to the program that is best for you.

Undergraduate studies
At McGill, we face challenges with determination and optimism. With 300+ programs and real-world learning opportunities, the McGill experience offers new pathways of education and prepares you for a successful career.

The Indigenous Applicants Protocol encourages admissions decision-makers to take educational experiences that are unique to Indigenous applicants into consideration. It also helps McGill’s dedicated Indigenous student recruitment advisor connect with applicants to share more information about support services and funding opportunities.

Medicine
The Faculty of Medicine aims to train more Indigenous health professionals, and to educate the greater population about the health needs of Indigenous people.

Learn more: mcgill.ca/cs/3pg

Law
The Faculty of Law offers programs and courses focused on Indigenous law and governance. You can gain practical work experience and participate in outreach programs in local Indigenous communities.

Learn more: mcgill.ca/cs/3SA

Graduate studies
McGill has a bold history of research guided by driven faculty at the top of their fields. Over 1,600 tenured faculty members research and teach in more than 400 graduate programs. Join a diverse community committed to challenging the boundaries of knowledge and shaping a better future.

Find your desired area of research mcgill.ca/gradapplicants/programs

Online continuing education programs
McGill’s School of Continuing Studies offers online certificate programs in Indigenous Business Management, Computers and Information Technology and Public Administration and Governance.

These courses are university-level, undergraduate, for-credit programs. The programs are part-time, take about 2½ years to complete, and can be completed entirely from your home.

Learn about the admissions process
Explore continuing education programs

Join a supportive campus community

Find your place on campus
For many first-year students, moving away from home is a big transition. McGill’s residence offer a warm and supportive living community where you can interact personally, socially, and academically. All first-year students are guaranteed housing if they apply for it. Limited subsidised housing is available for Indigenous students.

Indigenous student orientation
Take part in fun activities and connect with student groups. Get to know your community at McGill. Join fellow students and staff at lunch at the First Peoples’ House.

Cultural events
Our vibrant culture at McGill is made together. Stay connected with the Indigenous Knowledge Lecture Series, pipe ceremonies, workshops, Indigenous Awareness Weeks, social gatherings and more.

Celebrate your successes, and support each other
Indigenous graduates participate in a traditional powwow, including a Circle of Honour, where they receive ceremonial gifts and are celebrated by the community.

Interested in applying?
Learn more about First Peoples’ House

McGill University is located on land which has long served as a site of meeting and exchange amongst Indigenous peoples, including the Haudenosaunee and Anishinabe nations. McGill honours, recognizes and respects these nations as the traditional stewards of the lands and waters on which we meet today.

Learn about the admissions process
Explore continuing education programs
Get funding for your studies

Dedicated funding is available for Indigenous students. You may also be eligible for bursaries and funding programs offered by the government and McGill.

McGill Ohno’ncra Undergraduate Award
Admission and returning Indigenous undergraduate students are eligible for funding through Indspire of $5,000 per year, up to $20,000 for a four year degree program.*

Provost’s Indigenous Achievement Award
This is a $5,000 renewable admissions award for Indigenous students with exceptional high school or CEGEP grades, and who are not granted an Allen Gilchrist Entrance Scholarship. One-time awards are issued every year based on academic merit and all incoming students are automatically considered. *Please note that funding for these awards is available to Canadian citizens only.

Indigenous Graduate Excellence Recruitment Fellowship
This non-renewable, paid in installments over the first 12 months of study, provides support in addition to the core funding offered by a department, supervisor, or Faculty. Funding available: PhD - $10,000 | Masters (Thesis) - $5,000 | Masters (Non-Thesis) - $2,500

Keep in touch

Interested in studying at McGill? Take the first step by connecting with us. Join our mailing list, or reach out to speak directly with an Indigenous recruiter.

Sign up for updates by email
Stay on top of deadlines, receive links to virtual and on-campus events, and be the first to know when a McGill representative is coming to your area.

Sign up for updates

Visit mcgill.ca/undergraduate-admissions to explore financial aid and explore all of McGill's undergraduate programs.

Sage Karahkwinetha Goodleaf-Labelle
Kanien’keha:ka & Pueblo
Bachelor of Arts
Get funding for your studies

Dedicated funding is available for Indigenous students. You may also be eligible for bursaries and funding programs offered by the government and McGill.

McGill Ohníneza Undergraduate Award
Admissions and returning Indigenous undergraduate students are eligible for funding through Indspire at $5,000 per year, up to $20,000 for a four year degree program.

Provost’s Indigenous Achievement Award
This is a $5,000 renewable admissions award given to Indigenous students with exceptional high school or CEGEP grades and who are not granted an MA-SSIE Entrance Scholarship. Scholarships are awarded every year based on academic merit and all incoming students are automatically considered.

Indigenous Graduate Excellence Recruitment Fellowship
This non-renewable award, paid in installments over the first 12 months of study, provides support in addition to the core funding offered by a department, supervisor, or Faculty.

Sign up for updates by email
Stay on top of deadlines, receive invites to virtual and in-person events, and be the first to hear when a McGill representative is coming to your area.

Speak with an Indigenous recruiter
If you have questions about McGill, including our programs, funding, the admissions process, and the Indigenous Applicants Portal, contact us directly at indigenousoutreach@mcgill.ca.

Interested in studying at McGill?
Take the first step by connecting with us. Join our mailing list, or reach out to speak directly with an Indigenous recruiter.

Indigenous Student Guide
Sage Karahkwinetha Goodleaf-Labelle
Kanien’keha:ka & Pueblo
Bachelor of Arts

Explore financial aid
mcgill.ca/undergraduate-admissions

Sign up for updates